Opposition agrees with caregiver law as well

The Law on Caregiver Parents in Serbia foresees a monthly allowance of RSD 65,000 for parents who receive the status of caregivers, and the amount will be adjusted every year with the growth of the average salary. The opposition has no complaints about the bill. Amendments to the Criminal Code introduce the concept of special restitution and specify the rules on weapons and ammunition, while the new law on weapons raises the age limit for purchasing weapons for personal security from 18 to 21 and introduces stricter controls. Amendments to the Law on Funding Political Activities with campaign restrictions and encouraging women's participation were also proposed.

Macut: We want Belgrade to be a regional Interpol centre

PM Đuro Macut and Interior Minister Ivica Dačić spoke with Interpol Secretary General Valdecy Urquiza about the establishment of a regional Interpol Bureau in Belgrade, which would improve cooperation in the fight against organized crime, terrorism and other international threats. Serbia is recognized as a key partner in Interpol due to its active involvement in the identification of smuggling routes and the use of Interpol's databases.

Rush in goal of fulfilling Brussels' demands

The Parliament held an extraordinary session where amendments to the Law on Funding of Political Activities were discussed with the aim of fulfilling the recommendations of the OSCE, including the introduction of expenditure limits for election campaigns and the strengthening of the role of the Agency for the Prevention of Corruption. The opposition expressed its dissatisfaction, claiming that the changes bring only cosmetic changes and do not solve essential problems.

Bill on controlling pollution

Before the members of Parliament is the bill on integrated prevention and control of environmental pollution, which should affect the reduction of pollution from industry. The bill envisages simplification and digitization of the procedure for issuing integrated permits, which the state issues to large plants, if they apply the best technologies that meet strict environmental protection requirements and strengthen inspection supervision.
