Eight countries block our path to EU

The European Commission has recommended the opening of Cluster 3 in accession negotiations with Serbia, noting that the country has made progress in the judiciary, electronic media regulator and electoral legislation, but nine EU member states, including the Baltic states, Belgium, the Netherlands and Sweden, have resisted the opening due to problems in the rule of law and inconsistency with EU policies, particularly the failure to impose sanctions on Russia.

New law on guns

The Parliament debated the Bill on Arms and Ammunition, which drew sharp criticism from the We - People's Power parliamentary group for stricter measures leading to the disarmament of legal gun owners. The selection of judges and prosecutors in terms of national representation was also discussed, with Justice Minister Nenad Vujić emphasizing that the national composition will be taken into account, but the selection is based on expertise. MPs also supported harsher penalties for illegal possession of weapons and proposals for laws on parents-caregivers, doping in sports, financing of political activities, the media, environmental protection and the Constitutional Court.

Commitment to UN charter and European values

Parliament speakers of the candidate countries for membership in the European Union adopted the Belgrade Declaration on Cooperation, which confirms their commitment to the UN Charter, European values and the process of European integration while respecting sovereignty and territorial integrity. The declaration emphasizes the importance of parliaments in implementing reforms, strengthening democracy and the rule of law, as well as developing inter-parliamentary cooperation through regular annual meetings, organized for the first time in Serbia.

Macut hosts ambassadors of countries that do not recognize Kosovo

Serbian Prime Minister Đuro Macut hosted a lunch for the ambassadors of countries that did not recognize Kosovo's independence, thanking them for their support in preserving the territorial integrity and sovereignty of Serbia. He emphasized the importance of respecting international law and the UN Charter, assessing the situation in Kosovo as serious due to daily attacks and violations of the rights of the Serbian population.

Russia defends stance on Kosovo

Russian ambassador Alexander Botsan-Kharchenko says that the European Union is persistently trying to force Belgrade to recognize the independence of the so-called Kosovo and join the illegal anti-Russian restrictive measures, ignoring the clear position of the leadership and population of Serbia on both issues.
