Outbreak Spreads Across Seven Districts

The African swine fever virus is active in seven districts, 12 municipalities and 52 settlements in Serbia, Minister of Agriculture Dragan Glamočić said. The situation is particularly critical in the settlement of Skela in Obrenovac, where the competent services failed to implement the measures adequately and houses were not marked. A state of emergency has been declared, while the national and local crisis response teams meet daily to control and contain the outbreak. Since the beginning of the year, more than 28,000 pigs have died from suffocation or been euthanised, and the authorities have tightened the penalty policy and formed operational monitoring teams.

Serbia and America: A New Chapter

The Strategic Dialogue between Serbia and the United States has been established as an institutional framework for regular political consultations and the development of joint projects in energy, security, investment, technology and education. The dialogue represents a new phase in bilateral relations, based on long-term strategic planning and partnership rather than merely resolving outstanding issues from the past. Particular emphasis was placed on energy projects such as Đerdap 3, support from US companies and stronger military cooperation, including the programme with the Ohio National Guard. Serbia has also joined the international Artemis Accords for civil space activities, opening new opportunities for cooperation.
