Defending Mačva Against African Swine Fever

A state of emergency has been declared in the Mačva District because of African swine fever, a serious disease threatening the area's large livestock population of 250,000 to 300,000 animals in one of Serbia's most important pig-breeding regions. Agriculture Minister Dragan Glamočić announced enhanced protective measures and strict oversight of preventive activities in cooperation with local authorities, veterinary services, hunting associations, and forestry companies.

Low Danube Water Levels Push Fuel Prices Even Higher

Low water levels on the Danube are significantly hindering fuel transport to Serbia by barge, leading to higher petroleum product prices. The situation is further complicated by conflicts in the Middle East, which have pushed crude oil prices to around USD 90 per barrel, as well as the possible shutdown of the Petroleum Industry of Serbia (NIS) following the expiry of its licence on 31 July.

Highest Reported Individual Annual Income - RSD 1.6 Billion

The Serbian Tax Administration received 27,900 tax returns for the payment of annual personal income tax for 2025, with the highest reported annual income of an individual amounting to RSD 1.6 billion. The largest number of returns, a total of 18,302, were filed in Belgrade, while 72% of the highest incomes belonged to taxpayers from that region. Citizens with income exceeding RSD 5,439,096, three times the average salary in Serbia, were required to file a return.

GAS PRICES SURGE, BUT HOUSEHOLD BILLS REMAIN UNCHANGED

The price of gas on European exchanges has reached its highest level this year, rising by nearly 30%, while household gas prices in Serbia will not increase. Srbijagas CEO Dušan Bajatović said that businesses will continue to purchase most of their gas under the contract with Russia, which is expected to be extended. The Banatski Dvor gas storage facility is 93% full, while expansion works have been delayed by sanctions but are continuing.
