US Embassy: Ensure Serbian Representation in Kosovo Institutions

The Embassy of the United States of America in Pristina called on Kosovo's provisional institutions to ensure the full representation of Serbs in political and civic life and in institutions, stressing that the Constitution and laws guarantee their rights. The decision to dismiss seven Serbian prosecutors prompted reactions from the EU and the German Embassy, which expressed concern and called for restraint from actions that could jeopardise the reintegration of Serbian judicial personnel.

Czech Visit; Serbia and the Czech Republic; Relations and Cooperation

Czech Prime Minister Andrej Babiš arrived for a two-day visit to Serbia; immediately after his arrival, Serbian President Aleksandar Vučić hosted him for dinner. They discussed relations between the two countries and opportunities to further improve them, President Vučić said. He is convinced that today's official talks will further strengthen cooperation and noted that Serbia and the Czech Republic maintain traditionally good relations based on respect. Prime Minister Đuro Macut will host a ceremonial welcome for Babiš tomorrow in front of the Palace of Serbia, after which President Aleksandar Vučić will hold official talks with the Czech prime minister.

Cooperation Aimed at Accelerating and Strengthening the Country's Development

Serbian President Aleksandar Vučić met with a delegation of the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development (EBRD) for Southeast Europe to discuss continued cooperation and Serbia's strategic development priorities in sustainable infrastructure, energy, the green transition, renewable energy sources and improved energy efficiency. Vučić expressed satisfaction with the establishment of the EBRD regional hub for Southeast Europe in Belgrade, which confirms Serbia's importance as a reliable partner and the region's economic centre. The talks focused on implementing projects that will help strengthen the competitiveness of the economy, encourage sustainable economic growth and improve citizens' quality of life, as well as on enhancing cooperation to accelerate the development of the country and the region.

Dačić Thanks Bocan-Kharchenko for Russia's Consistent Support

Serbian Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of the Interior Ivica Dačić thanked Russian Ambassador Alexander Bocan-Kharchenko for the Russian Federation's consistent support in preserving Serbia's territorial integrity and sovereignty. The meeting highlighted the active political dialogue and long-standing friendship between Serbia and Russia, as well as successful bilateral and multilateral cooperation. The two officials emphasised the importance of continuing cooperation in areas of common interest, including the fight against organised crime and cooperation in emergency situations.

Serbia Is a Serious Negotiating Partner

Serbia has become a serious negotiating partner of the United States in the strategic dialogue held in Washington in July 2026, marking a significant change in US policy towards the Western Balkans after several decades. While the United States previously supported Pristina as a key partner, the focus is now shifting towards deepening cooperation with Serbia, particularly in the field of energy.

DAILY REPORT POLITICAL REVIEW

At the same time, the strategic dialogue between the United States and Pristina's provisional institutions has been stalled since September 2025, while the Americans are demanding that Pristina fulfil its previously undertaken obligations. This change indicates that the United States is no longer providing unconditional political support to Pristina, but is instead pursuing a more flexible and conditional policy towards the region.
