

DATUM

October 1, 2026

NINAMEDIA CLIPPING

DAILY REPORT ECONOMIC REVIEW

ninamedia

DAILY REPORT ECONOMY REVIEW

Blic TV

Serbia awaits licenses for NIS, MOL, and Janaf

Russia has extended Serbia's gas arrangement until the end of the year on the same terms, according to Srbijagas Director Dušan Bajatović. At the same time, Serbia was awaiting decisions from Washington on licenses relating to NIS's operations, MOL's negotiations over the Russian majority stake, and the continuation of oil deliveries through Janaf.

Politika

Heating with domestic pellets costs more than heating with Russian gas

Politika reports that heating with pellets, despite their being a domestically produced fuel, has become more expensive than heating with gas. For a 60-square-meter apartment, the cost of pellets for six months is estimated at around RSD 114,000, further raising the issue of heating fuel price trends ahead of the season.

Danas

Food, beverages, and tobacco see the largest price increases, at 9% each

Danas highlights rising food, beverage, and tobacco prices as one of the most pronounced pressures on consumers. According to the figures cited in the article, prices in each of these categories have risen by 9%, placing them among the main drivers of the rising cost of living.

Blic TV

Eligibility for unemployment benefits

The segment explains the conditions under which unemployed people can qualify for unemployment benefits and the procedure for obtaining them. The topic is important for the labor market and the social security of people who lose their jobs.

Politika

Čadež: We are ready for a new generation of investors

Chamber of Commerce and Industry of Serbia President Marko Čadež discusses the need for Serbia to attract a new generation of investors and adapt its business environment to changes in global value chains. The focus is on investment that brings higher added value, technology, and stronger links between domestic companies and the international market.

Danas

Belgrade remains the most expensive

Danas analyzes the real estate market and states that Belgrade continues to lead in housing prices. High purchase and rental costs remain a major economic issue for households, particularly amid increased demand.