EU changes decision-making rules on enlargement

Blic TV reports on plans for a new EU enlargement policy under which some decisions during accession negotiations could be made by a qualified majority rather than unanimously. Under the proposal presented, a veto would remain possible at the beginning and end of the process, and the change would also be significant for Western Balkan countries, including Serbia.

Vučić's pardons under a cloud of suspicion

Danas examines the legal procedure that preceded the pardon decisions and reports the views of interviewees who question how the process was conducted. The article focuses in particular on the role of the Ministry of Justice and the lack of responses from the relevant institutions to the newspaper's questions.
