

NINAMEDIA CLIPPING

DAILY REPORT ECONOMIC REVIEW

ninamedia

DAILY REPORT ECONOMY REVIEW

Danas

We Have the Regulations, but Not the Political Will

The article examines high food and fuel prices in Serbia through oligopolies in retail, banking and other sectors. The debate featured differing views on the causes of inflation, with particular focus on the Competition Commission and strong domestic price pressures.

Politika

Origin Information Alongside the Price of Meat

Croatia is preparing stricter rules for labeling the origin of unpackaged meat, requiring origin information to be displayed directly next to the product and in lettering at least the same size as the price. The topic is linked to rising imports, a decline in livestock numbers and broader EU plans to strengthen the competitiveness of livestock farming and the transparency of food origin.

Blic

Drive Cafe - More Than Coffee

NIS presented the Drive Cafe concept operating at NIS Petrol and Gazprom service stations. The company says 7.5 million cups of coffee were sold last year, and the offer is available at more than 300 locations, with new packaging and expanded brand presentation.

Politika

Record Demand for Used Electric Cars

A surge in fuel prices has driven strong growth in demand for used electric cars in France. The average price of used electric vehicles reached €25,593, 9.7% higher than a year earlier, while supply fell by 32%.

Danas

VREME: ARE EXPO SOUVENIRS BUSINESS OR POLITICS

Souvenirs dedicated to EXPO 2027 are already being sold at busy locations in Belgrade, including Knez Mihailova Street, Ušće, Prokop and Nikola Tesla Airport. The article cites the weekly Vreme's assessment that high prices raise questions about the target audience, while also commenting on the motifs used on the branded merchandise.

Politika

One Million Used Phones Sold as New

An operation was carried out in 19 European countries over an organized fraud in which more than one million used phones were sold as new. The European Public Prosecutor's Office (EPPO) estimates the damage at around €300 million, while the suspects are also accused of tax fraud worth tens of millions of euros.