European Committee of the Regions Adopts Resolution on Serbia

The European Committee of the Regions unanimously adopted a resolution condemning the glorification of convicted war criminals in Serbia. The document was adopted at a plenary meeting in Brussels on October 14, at the initiative of Croatian members of the EU advisory body. The resolution stresses the need to protect European values and condemns honoring Ratko Mladić. The article quotes Committee members who consider such practices contrary to European values. The decision introduces a new issue in Serbia's relations with European institutions.

Director's Departure Further Complicates REM Operations

Longtime director of the Regulatory Authority for Electronic Media, Rajka Galin Čertić, submitted a request to terminate her contract, Danas reports, citing Nova.rs. According to those reports, the decision followed a request that she prepare an official note on a conflict at REM premises. October 26 is cited as the date her engagement will end. REM Council member Rodoljub Šabić said the director's departure further complicates an already difficult situation at the regulatory authority. He pointed to deep divisions among Council members and disagreements over the handling of media outlets.
