EUROPEAN COMMISSION: SERBIA MUST URGENTLY HALT VIOLATIONS OF ACADEMIC FREEDOMS AND AUTONOMY

The European Commission has stated that Serbia must halt the deterioration of freedom of expression and violations of academic freedoms. Valentina Superti, Director for the Western Balkans, responded to a letter from representatives of the Movement of Free Citizens. She emphasized Serbia's obligation, as a candidate for EU membership, to protect university autonomy and academic freedoms.

Security Apparatus Conducts Surveillance to Keep the Regime in Power

The article examines allegations that university rector Vladan Đokić and prosecutor Rade Bajić were targeted with Pegasus spyware. Commentators say such cases raise questions about political control over the security services and possible surveillance of dissenters. The focus is on the responsibility of institutions to ensure that surveillance measures are applied lawfully.

Fico Has Become Vučić's Last Stronghold in Europe

The article analyzes international support for Aleksandar Vučić ahead of the elections and the role of Slovak Prime Minister Robert Fico. Commentator Boško Jakšić believes that, following political changes in Hungary, Fico has remained one of the few European leaders who openly support Vučić. The article also considers the restraint shown by European officials toward Serbia's domestic election campaign.
